In a launch video explaining the name change and detailing the new features, Mixer's director of marketing Jenn McCoy and co-founder James Boehm said that the new name was chosen 'because it represents what we love most about the platform, that it's all about bringing people together..' Mixer Create should begin rolling out on the iOS App Store throughout the day, and the iOS game streaming features will be 'coming soon..' Beam in January 2016 before Microsoft acquired it in August 2016 for an undisclosed sum, and then integrated the game streaming service into Windows 10 and Xbox One earlier in 2017.
